

On the Advice of Praxilla

On the advice of Praxilla,
we are asked to look under every stone
for a hiding scorpion.

The proverb sounds all right.
But, turning stones,
remember:
poets also bite.

Aristophanes of Byzantium, 257 – 180 B.C.
Trans. from Greek by Sam Hamill